Re: Red Header RO

We were introduced to the RED HEADER product by Mike Cavanaugh on a project we built called the Clover Leaf Apartments. This was a ten story building with numerous window openings that would have taken hundreds of man hours to complete using traditional framing methods. After hearing the advantages of using the RED HEADER system, we were eager to give this product a shot. Mike got us started with the shop drawings, and then walked us through the process by instructing our field foremen on site step by step. The result was great. We framed the openings in record time saving a few hours per window. The money saved on labor alone more that paid for the material. I would recommend the RED HEADER product for any project with a large number of windows to be framed.
